WBF-Expertenforum 2015

Nach Prüfung der wissenschaftlichen Studienlage – Entwarnung kann verlängert werden:

Keine Gesundheitsgefahr durch Mobilfunk

Wien, Dezember 2015.

Der WBF (Wissenschaftlicher Beirat Funk) steht dem Bundesministerium für Verkehr, Innovation und Technologie (BMVIT) seit über zehn Jahren als beratendes Organ zur Seite. Die aktuelle Konsensus-Konferenz des WBF tagte im November 2015 und kam einmal mehr zu dem Ergebnis, dass eine Gefährdung der menschlichen Gesundheit durch Mobilfunk bei Einhaltung der Grenzwerte aus heutiger Sicht ausgeschlossen werden kann.

Gepprüft und bewertet wurden insgesamt 205 – im Zeitraum von Februar 2014 bis inklusive Juni 2015 veröffentlichte – wissenschaftliche Arbeiten. Damit kann der WBF seine Analyse auf insgesamt mehr als 1000 Studien seit seiner Gründung stützen.

Neben den Wissenschaftlichen Mitgliedern des WBF wirkten auch diesmal wieder eine Reihe externer nationaler und internationaler Experten an der Prüfung und Beschlussfassung mit.

Untersucht wurden Studien der folgenden Bereiche: Befindlichkeitsstörungen, Nervensystem, Gentoxizität, Kinder und Jugendliche, Zeugungsfähigkeit, Hals-Nasen-Ohren, Tumorentwicklung und Dosimetrie.

Die Auswahl der Studien und die Prüfarbeit des WBF waren diesmal vor allem gekennzeichnet durch: 1. eine große Anzahl von Tierstudien mit fraglicher Übertragbarkeit auf den Menschen, 2. überwiegend neue Aufbereitungen der vorhandenen Datenlage – neue Daten wurden kaum erhoben sowie 3. eine Reihe offensichtlich mangelhafter Studien, die dennoch Eingang in renommierte wissenschaftliche Publikationen finden konnten.

Tierexperimentelle Arbeiten – wenig Aussagekraft für den Menschen

In letzter Zeit wurden zahlreiche Untersuchungen – mit teilweise fragwürdiger Dosimetrie – an verschiedensten Tieren durchgeführt: Schweine waren hier ebenso vertreten wie Ameisen und Fliegen bis hin zu Mäusen und Ratten.

„Die Problematik besteht darin, dass eine Übertragung der Ergebnisse dieser Studien auf den Menschen nicht möglich ist. Wir können daraus aber Anhaltspunkte gewinnen, wo mit weiterführenden Humanforschungen angesetzt werden sollte“, erläutert Univ.-Prof. DI Dr. Norbert VANA, Vorsitzender des WBF.

Nocebo und Überempfindlichkeit – psychologische Effekte wahrscheinlich

Störungen der Befindlichkeit durch Mobilfunk-Strahlung konnten bisher nicht objektiv nachgewiesen werden.

Möglicherweise spielt in diesem Zusammenhang der sog. Nocebo-Effekt eine Rolle. Dazu Univ.-Prof. Dr. Christian WOLF, Stv. Vorsitzender des WBF: „Analog zu den positiven Wirkungen des Placebo-Effektes kommt es beim Nocebo-Effekt allein bereits aufgrund der subjektiven Annahme negativer Auswirkungen des Mobilfunks zu Befindlichkeitsstörungen.“

Außerdem kann – so Prof. WOLF – aus den aktuellen Studien abgeleitet werden, dass Menschen mit behaupteter Überempfindlichkeit dem Mobilfunk gegenüber offenbar eine Subgruppe jenes Personenkreises darstellen, der eine generelle Überempfindlichkeit gegen Umwelteinflüsse behauptet.

Können Mobilfunkfelder einen 'Adaptive Response' erzeugen?

Hinsichtlich der Genotoxizität von hochfrequenten elektromagnetischen Feldern (EMF), speziell des Mobilfunks, wurde auch in den neueren Studien der „oxidative Stress“ immer wieder andiskutiert. Seine Bedeutung bleibt jedoch auch weiterhin zweifelhaft.

Im Gegenteil ergaben sich – wie der deutsche Experte Prof. Dr. Jürgen KIEFER beim Konsensus-Meeting ausführte – Hinweise darauf, dass Mobilfunkfelder einen sog. „Adaptive Response“ (= Zellen gewöhnen sich an geringe Dosen genotoxischer Substanzen und werden so weniger empfindlich auf spätere genetische Schädigungen durch eine höhere Dosis ähnlicher Substanzen) auslösen könnten. Demgemäß wäre eine krebsschutzprotektive Wirkung des Mobilfunks durchaus denkbar.

Dosimetrie: je kleiner die Zellengröße, desto stärker die Reduktion der Exposition

Wurden sog. Femtozellen (= Funkzellen mit geringerer räumlicher Ausdehnung – Indoor-Basisstationen mit geringer Sende- und Empfangsleistung) bereits bisher als wirksame Methode erkannt, die Exposition von Mobiltelefonbenutzern zu reduzieren, so konnte nun gezeigt werden, dass noch kleinere sog. Pikoellen (z.B. in Zügen) zu einer weiteren bedeutsamen Reduktion der Exposition der Nutzer führen können.

Deutsches Bundesamt für Strahlenschutz (BfS): Umfrage zum Mobilfunk bei 12.000 Personen

Gemäß einer Umfrage, die das BfS über mehrere Jahre bei insgesamt rund 12.000 Personen zum Thema „Nutzung und Wahrnehmung des Mobilfunks im Zusammenhang mit den Gefahren, die von der Strahlung elektromagnetischer Felder ausgehen“ durchgeführt hat, lassen sich die Menschen durch die laufenden Diskussionen zu dieser Problematik kaum beeinflussen.

Männer nützen die Handytelefonie zu 92%, Frauen zu 84%. Wobei die Handynutzung in den Altersgruppen der 25- bis 44-Jährigen bei nahezu 100% liegt; mit nach obenweisendem Trend bei steigender Bildung und steigendem Haushaltseinkommen.

Der SAR-Wert spielt für nur 4% der Befragten eine Rolle beim Neukauf eines Handys – viel wichtiger sind Bedienbarkeit, Preis, Funktionen und Design.

Deutlich unter einem Drittel (28%) der Umfrageteilnehmer macht sich Sorgen wegen gesundheitlicher Risikofaktoren, die von Mobilfunksendeanlagen (Handymasten) ausgehen, nur knapp ein Fünftel (18%) wegen des Handys selbst.

„Handys gehören – so die BfS-Umfrage – heute zum fixen Bestandteil unserer modernen Kommunikation. Für 63% der befragten Personen ist das Handy aus ihrem Leben nicht mehr wegzudenken. Und: Selbst bei nachgewiesener gesundheitlicher Beeinträchtigung würden nur 50% auf das Handy verzichten!“, berichtet Univ.-Prof. Dr. Norbert VANA.

Ermahnung des WBF bleibt aufrecht: Langzeitfolgen derzeit noch nicht abschätzbar

„Auch wenn die derzeitige Studienlage keinen Grund zur Besorgnis gibt, können Langzeiteffekte des Mobilfunks aus heutiger Sicht noch nicht ausreichend beurteilt werden. Daher mahnen wir vom WBF auch weiterhin zu einem umsichtigen Umgang bei der Verwendung von Mobilfunktechnologien“, fasst Univ.-Prof. Dr. Gerald HAIDINGER, Mitglied des WBF, die abschließende Empfehlung des Experten-Gremiums zusammen.
